NOMINATION AND APPOINTMENT OF SCHOOL OF MEDICINE FACULTY TO THE GRADUATE FACULTY OF THE UNIVERSITY OF PITTSBURGH

(REVISED 1/21/20)

Appointment to the Graduate Faculty of the University by the Provost signifies competence in graduate instruction and in the supervision of PhD student research, together with a record of active advancement of knowledge through an independent research program. The appointment process begins with Nomination by the PhD training program that the faculty member seeks to join. The director of said graduate program then presents the nomination to the School of Medicine Graduate Council for review and approval. Upon approval by the Graduate Council, the Associate Dean for Graduate Studies and the Dean of the medical school must approve the nomination before transmittal to the Provost for final consideration and approval.

Instructions A
The procedure below pertains to nominations initiated by a School of Medicine PhD granting program, the application packet must contain the following:

1. UNIVERSITY Nomination FORM - signed by the director of the graduate program in which the candidate proposes to participate and six members of the graduate faculty whose field of expertise is similar to that of the candidate. If fewer than six graduate faculty members within the graduate program possess the appropriate expertise, then additional signatures may be obtained from graduate faculty members in other programs, schools or colleges of the University working in closely related areas. Please print the name next to the signature of each person who signs the nomination form. The Dean and Provost signatures will be obtained after review by the Graduate Council. This form is available in the SOM Office of Graduate Studies.

2. LETTER FROM THE CANDIDATE – should describe the reasons for seeking appointment to the Graduate Faculty. The letter must identify the PhD program making the nomination and the specific contributions the candidate plans to make to the program.

3. MENTORING STATEMENT FROM THE CANDIDATE – Describe your philosophy, strategies and approaches to mentoring graduate students in 200 to 400 words. How will you foster the scientific research and psychosocial development of your PhD student? Core elements of productive mentoring include effective communication, alignment of expectations, regular assessment of progress and plans, fostering independence, cultural awareness, professional development and career exploration. What are your approaches to enhance work-life balance, wellness and resilience in your mentees? 4. LETTER FROM GRADUATE PROGRAM DIRECTOR – briefly describe the nominee’s anticipated role in the PhD training program and your approval of their qualifications.

5. LETTER FROM DEPARTMENT CHAIR - A letter of support from the SOM department chair in which the candidate has their primary academic appointment. This letter should indicate that the candidate has independent research laboratory/office space and independent funding. This letter should provide assurance that the chair is aware of the time commitment required for effective mentoring of graduate students and of the fiscal relationship, between departments and the Office of the Dean, required for the recovery of tuition costs. The department chair should acknowledge that financial support for the candidate’s graduate students will be provided in the event that the candidate’s funding becomes unavailable.

6. CURRICULUM VITAE – The candidate’s CV must be in the format required by the School of Medicine as described here: http://www.medfaculty.pitt.edu/documents/cvformat.final.pdf. The CV should include:
   a. Research funding history, current funding, and submitted applications for new projects
   b. Publications
   c. Formal teaching activities
   d. Students and postdoctoral fellows trained
   e. Documentation of independent research laboratory/office space
